

ARMY SONGS

I LONG TO BE NEARER

Tunes—God gave His Son, 232;
Song Book, 754.
Saviour, I long to be nearer to Thee!
In word and deed and thought, holy
to be!
Oh, take this heart of mine,
And seal me ever Thine,
Full me with love Divine, for service,
Lord!

Make me a blazing fire, where'er
I go,
That to a dying world Thee I may show;
How Thou hast bled and died
That none may be denied,
But in Thy bleeding side a refuge find.

So shall my moments flow in praising Thee!
For Thou hast never failed to strengthen me!
Filled with the Holy Ghost,
Saved to the uttermost,
In Christ alone I'll boast, and forward go!

LOVE FOR SOULS

Tunes—Give me a heart, 32; Song
Book, 387.

While here before Thy Cross, I
kneel,
To me Thy love impart;
With a deep, burning love for souls,
Lord, fill my burning heart.

Chorus

Give me a heart like Thine!
By Thy wonderful power,
And Thy grace every hour,
Give me a heart like Thine!

Deepen in me Thy work of grace,
Teach me to do Thy will;
Help me to live a spotless life,
Thy holy laws fulfil.

With mighty power my soul baptize,
My longing heart inspire,
That I may from this moment rise
A living flame of fire.

IN THE FIGHT

Tunes—Marsellaise, 147; Song
Book, 276.

I'm a Soldier bound for Glory,
I'm a Soldier going Home;
Come and hear me tell my story,
All who love the Saviour, come.

Chorus

To arms, to arms, ye brave!
See, see, the standard wave!
March on, march on, the trumpet
sounds,
To victory or death!

I will tell you what induced me
In the glorious fight to start;
'Twas the Saviour's loving kindness
Overcame and won my heart.

When I first commenced my warfare,
Many said, "He'll run away";
But they all have been deceived—
In the fight I am to-day.

AT THE CROSS

Tunes—At the cross, 209; S. B., 32.
Sinner, where'er thou art,
At the Cross there's room!
Tell the burden of thy heart,
At the Cross there's room!
Tell it in Thy Saviour's ear,
Cast away thy every fear,
Only speak, and He will hear;
At the Cross there's room!

Haste thee, wanderer, farry not,
Seek that consecrated spot;
Heavy-laden, sore opprest,
Love can soothe thy troubled breast,
In the Saviour find thy rest.

SOLO

Tune—B.B., 131.

Fully trusting Christ, my Saviour,
He who died for me,
All the help I need He giveth,
Since He set me free.

Chorus

Trusting Jesus every moment,
Though the light be dim;
I shall never be confounded,
While I trust in Him.

Trusting Him when all is darkness,
Trusting when it's bright;
Even when the clouds are blackest
With Him there is light.

What need I fear while He is nigh?
He my steps will guide;
I am trusting Jesus daily,
Walking by His side.

CHRISTMAS "CRY"

Sold Like Hot Cakes—Christmas
Dinner to Poor.

We are still moving along at Yarmouth, N.S. (says S. P.), and God is blessing us. The Christmas season has been a busy one, but we enjoyed blessing others.

Our Christmas "War Cry" sold like hot cakes; quite a number of people paying twenty-five cents for it.

Although Yarmouth is not a very large town, there are quite a lot of poor people here, so we undertook to supply Christmas dinners to as many as possible. In all forty-two big boxes were given out, each containing a half-bushel of potatoes,

roast of beef, bread, butter, sugar,
etc. They were very gratefully received, and brought cheer and happiness, where otherwise there would have been none.

The Watch-night Service, led by Captain Davis, was well attended, and we realized the Presence of God.

Our Christmas Tree was held on Monday, Jan. 1st, and a crowded
Hall greeted the children, who rendered a splendid programme. It was a decided success.

THIRTY-TWO AT THE CROSS

God is indeed blessing our efforts at Hamilton 11. (says E.G.). On Sunday, Dec. 24th, we had the joy of seeing five souls won for God.

Sunday, Dec. 31st, was a time of rich blessing, when in our Sunday night meeting, five souls knelt at the Mercy Seat. The Watch-night Service was indeed a real Pentecost to our souls; twenty-two came forward for Conversion and Sanctification. It was truly a heart-searching time, when confessions were made to God, old vows renewed, and a strong determination fled every heart to be out and out for God and souls during the year 1917.

The Soldiers' meetings have increased in both numbers and interest of late. We are in for victory!

WOOL-WASHING PLANT

A wool-washing plant is to be established in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, the machinery for which is now being shipped from America
(the American Consul in Port Elizabeth reports). The plant will consist of two washing machines, two dryers, and a duster, and will be capable of handling 35,000 pounds of wool per day of ten hours. With the prevailing high freight rates it is essential to eliminate waste before shipping.

A census of the volcanoes in the world shows there are 672 in all, of which 275 are active.

Adjutant Hakkirk sang "While the Day Is Going By," and then the speaker commenced his address. The theme of his talk was "Individualism in Salvation." He enlarged on the wonderful power and effect of this man's example, mentioning the great results of Salvation Army has achieved as a result of individual effort.

The Free-and-Easy was led on by Miss and Mrs. Coombs, and a good time was spent.

The Salvation meeting was inspiring. Adjutant Habkirk soloed "If You Win the One Next to You," and the Band rendered "Eternity" election.

The Colonel took Daniel as the character for his talk. He drew an example of the various ways in which Daniel was tempted, and yet his determined spirit enabled him to overcome all, and his determination moved to be of great assistance.

One's soul was stirred as the Colonel drew various object lessons from Daniel's life. He also addressed an interesting talk to the children on various qualities of snow and of the object lessons one might obtain from

On Monday night, Jan. 8th, at five o'clock, a lantern lecture, entitled, "The Life of Christ," was held for the benefit of the children. Some thirty and eighteen were present, and when the Colonel made an appeal for children to give their hearts to God, about forty responded.

Several boys, seeing that the pulpit was filled, went back and took their own chairs and knelt at the service at eight o'clock took the form of a Salvation meeting, and several souls were helped. The children spoke to the children, using their talk several one-cent pieces.

Downed by Booze

BUT NOW DELIVERED BY JESUS—A CONVERTED DRUNK ARD'S TESTIMONY

I FEEL that I should make the readers of "The War Cry" acquainted with the great blessings which the Lord has brought into my soul, and I trust that my experience will prove helpful to some poor soul that has been serving the devil the same as I have done.

I was born in England, and as a youth I was apprenticed to the shoe trade, and at the age of sixteen I was able to turn out a first-class job re-making new shoes and repairing same. Therefore I was able to demand a man's wages for my work. I was well provided my downfall in life, and I began drinking and gambling. I would quite drinking at times and save a nice lot of cash, and when I thought I had got enough, I would go out and get a pretty good "get together" term for there.

The consequence was that I would get discharged from all the situa-and on the Monday morning all that I could find was 35c.

That didn't make any difference to me, however; the devil was still in me. I wanted some more booze, so I went to the saloon and asked the same, I went to a shoe repairing store and sold two pair of shoes for four dollars—they had cost me $1.00. I went to the saloon and then I was broke; no money. I went to a meal and half and half-dine with the drink. That did not stop my career. I secured another situation, but that didn't work. I was not another jagger and this job was lost.

Well, I began to think it was time for me to make a move to another town. I went to the saloon and struck Camroose, and when I looked at him I saw 50c. I struck a job, but it only lasted for a few weeks. Then I was out of a job, with no money and no money in my pocket. I was in the winter, so I was up against it.

tions that I used to secure. But that didn't stop me. Being a first-class mechanic I could always secure another situation. But the time came when I got tired of that kind of life and I began to think I would like to leave England and go to Canada. Not having the price for my ticket, I was kind of up against it. Well, I soon got over that part of the business.

I had a good old friend in Canada—one that had never taken drink nor tobacco. He had tried lots of times to get me to quit the habit. I wrote to him and explained that I would like to come to Canada, but was, as nearly all the booze-fighters put, up against it for the price to buy the ticket. Well, he was good enough to send me a prepaid ticket, and I landed in Canada about five

I can safely say that I have had one of the best of chances to make good; but the old craving for drink got me; I would save up a good roll, then I would have one big time of it. I have spent as much as $100 in one day on drink. I remember one time finishing up a job on a Friday night... I had saved $250 on the job. I started out on one of these "jags."

and did not know what to do. Eventually I managed to get a job, but there was no money in it. I just worked for my board and room for about two months.

Then I found a friend that started me up in a shoe-repairing business; I was to run the business and he was to be partner and receive half of what I made. Being up against it, I was glad to agree to anything.

was glad to agree to anything. I worked up a nice business, but prosperity was not in my line. More booze was what I wanted. I started out on another jag, and the consequences was I agreed to take $50 to get out of the business. I received the money and took a trip to Edmondson, where I got in touch with my boozing chums, and had a good time, as they call it, and in five days I was down and out again.

While I was up in Edmonton my friend sold all the stock in trade of the shoe-repairing business and the store was closed up. I made my infirm up to go back to Camrose, and make a fresh start; but there was the old trouble in the way—boomer's luck; down and out, and no money to buy the stock. Well, an old friend put up the money and I soon had

INTERNATIONAL INTELLIGENCE

INDIA

A "NAVAL" RECEPTION FOR INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL

Colonel Dean is now campaigning in India. In the Travancore District the public gatherings commenced with the "naval" reception at Marvellakara, which was something quite novel in the experience of our much-travelled visitor. The party travelled from Quilon by rail on our picturesque backwaters. While still a great way off from the landing stage, an Army flag was observed to be fluttering in the breeze some little distance down the river, and sounds of joy were carried to our ears.

Gradually a little fleet of decorated boats drew near, and when they had surrounded us glad shouts of "Hallelujah" and "Welcome" rent the early morning.

The boats turned and escorted us to Marvellakara, the rowers in each boat keeping time, with their oars and voices, to the singing of a chosen leader, who balanced himself in the prow and directed operations.

A great crowd awaited us near the picturesque old Marvellakara Church for the party's landing. Many Corps were represented, each having its own banner of welcome, and when the procession set off for the Divisional Headquarters the scene was indeed a gay one.

Those familiar with the fiery character of Colonel Dean's usual platform utterances wondered how he would be affected by the restraints of translation. Naturally, he did find it rather irksome, but the Lord helped him and his earnest messages got home to the hearts of his hearers. Large crowds came to the Mercy Seat, amongst them being many Syrian Christians.

BUDDHIST MONK IS CONVERTED IN JAIL—BRASS BAND STARTED AT COLOMBO

Staff-Captain Fernando (Ceylon) reports the conversion of a Buddhist monk in jail. He was imprisoned for attempting the life of a Government official who interfered with his plans for building a temple on certain Government property. He now is willing to be enrolled as a Soldier, he reads his Bible and kneels for prayer.

Colombo boasts a Brass Band. True, only five instruments, but they are the most of drawing the people to hear about Jesus. Eusebio Vera Rato, who has organized the Band, also reports the Salvation of a drunkard, whose testimony is listened to with surprise by all who knew him.

How Goes The Army?

A PASSING SURVEY OF SOME OF OUR WORLD-WIDE BATTLEFIELDS, AND OF MANY THRILLING VICTORIES WON FOR GOD

THE invitation to come to Christ is being proclaimed by Salvation Army Officers in some sixty countries and colonies, in nearly forty different languages.

Commissioner McAloon, under whose purview as an International Secretary, came a number of such Territories, give the following interesting review of The Army's operations in the course of an interview with an Editorial representative:

Advancing in China

"In addition to having opened up during the past twelve months new sections of the many Territories over which The Salvation Army has been advancing, we have commenced work in China, and there the outlook is very hopeful indeed. Although we had not expected the pioneer Officers for the moment to do anything in the nature of public work, the pressure put upon them has been so great and the desire of the people to learn about Jesus so insistent that they have had to hold meetings in spite of themselves!

"Open-air services have also been begun. We teach the people to sing at these by the aid of large calico sheets on which the words are written—we haven't yet proper song-books for them. An outstanding feature about these meetings is the quickness with which the children get hold of the songs. In that district of Peking the boys and girls can be heard singing Salvation Army songs in their houses and at their play.

"Every mail brings us assurances that The Salvation Army has arrived at just the right moment, and that our methods will be very successful in bringing the Chinese to God.

Japanese Troops Converted

"Turning to Java," continued the Commissioner, handling a pile of paper, "most remarkable results are being achieved, the natives—many of them raw heathens—are being brought to God in scores and hundreds.

"The military men," went on the Commissioner, "are much interested in our work, and God is greatly blessing our efforts amongst them. In one company of two hundred native soldiers, all but one have been converted!

"The same can be said of our work in Cebu, where large numbers of people are coming to God—our opportunities there are unsurpassed anywhere!

Japan is Marvellous

"Japan!" The Commissioner became thoughtful as if to gain a true perspective before speaking, and then proceeded, his eyes sparkling as he did so, "Japan is marvellous.

A new Naval and Military Home at this place, ten people, all who were unconverted in the meeting, sought Salvation. The Hall was too small for the crowd at night, and a meeting was held outside.

The military commander is very much interested in our efforts for

The most wonderful thing about that country is that it is developing within its own borders to a truly astounding degree. There are only a few European Officers in the whole of Japan; all the others are Japanese, in addition to which there are between forty and fifty Cadets in Training. Colonel and Mrs. de Groot have been most cordially received by all classes.

"In Japan, too, we are opening a Sanatorium, and we have under consideration the erection of a Headquarters which shall be worthy of The Army in that land, as well as a considerable number of Halls for our purposes. We are at first considering extensions all the time!

The President's Gift

"Then to speak of South America is to speak of another very wide field of opportunity and promise, and considerable vitality is being shown by our forces there. Recently in Chile a lady of high social standing introduced Lieut.-Colonel Bonnet, the Provincial Officer, to the President of the Republic, and told him that The Salvation Army had been the means of saving her drunken son. The President thereupon said he would give The Army a piece of land on which to erect a Drunkards' Home!

The Harvest Is Great

"Splendid soul-saving advances are being made in India. In one village recently nineteen heathens came over to The Army in our meeting, and it is very probable that the whole community of four hundred souls will follow their example. The people of another village waited twelve years and no one came, they built themselves a temple in which to worship. A Cadet recently went there and held a meeting, and when the invitation was given for them to decide for Christ, ninety-six men and women responded, and the meeting was kept going until midnight!

"It has been decided that five hundred of the mud and wattle huts in the villages are to be replaced by erections of brick and slate. Every year much damage is done to the existing Halls during the rainy season, and not a few of these are utterly collapsed. The General has issued an order for the early erection of the first fifty!

"Yes, Hallelujah! the heathens are coming to God. But how many more could be won had we the Officers available! From many quarters the cry reaches us, 'Come, help us! Send us some one to tell us of Jesus!' They want to leave their heathenism and idolatry; who will show them how? The heathen is great—was never greater—but the labourers are few!"

the Salvation of the native soldiers, and has offered to place a large building at our disposal, and to give us one of our company of two hundred men, an already recorded, all exceptions, have already been secured, and God's claims are sought.

Salvation.

COLONEL AND MRS. DE GROOT ARE WELCOMED

Attend Official Reception at Minister's House in Honmachi, the Emperor's Residence

Colonel and Mrs. de Groot, who arrived at Kobe (Japan) on October 22nd, were greeted by more than a Soldier at eight places on the way up to Tokyo, and in Eastern Japan, were presented with beautiful bouquets of flowers.

On reaching the capital they heard the familiar strains of Salvation Army Band music and gathered at the station was a large crowd of Officers, Cadets, Bands, Soldiers and Life-Saving Scouts. The latter formed a guard of honour and the bugler sounded the Grand March. Major Yabuki (Maj. Secretary) welcomed the new arrivals. A pit-aid meeting was held in the Honmachi Tabernacle. The Hall was full to its capacity, and twenty-one men and women sought Salvation.

A few days after their arrival Colonel and Mrs. de Groot were received by the Dutch and British Ambassadors, and later the Japanese Prime Minister (Count Terauchi), who is also Foreign Minister, invited them to attend a reception at his official residence in honour of the Emperor's birthday.

The Dutch Ambassador introduced them to the Foreign Minister and his lady, and they were taken to the room reserved for diplomats, and amongst others were introduced to the Home Minister, the Russian Ambassador and his lady, the American Ambassador, and also to the Ambassadors of France, Sweden, and Switzerland.

The lady of the Russian Ambassador showed special interest in The Army, and spoke at length with the Colonel on our work in Russia and Finland.

The seventh Annual Young People's Day in Japan was held in the Emperor's birthday. Meetings were held by Colonel and Mrs. de Groot in the Baptist Tabernacle in the centre of Tokyo. Lieut.-Colonel Yamamoto (Chief Secretary) assisted, and there was an attendance of a thousand Young People. Ninety-one of these sought Salvation, and ten volunteered for Officership.

INTERNATIONAL ITEMS

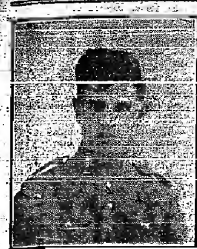

More Huts are in course of erection in France, under the direction of Lieut.-Colonel Haines—then amongst English, French, and each for Australian, Canadian, and coloured troops.

Nine seekers were registered at a meeting at the Chain Tuffin (Malla), by Captain Back of the Naval and Military Home.

"A few of us held meetings at the Khud side of the Murree Hills, writes Comrade Arthur Searcy, 'I was camped in India, and God has helped us to win nine souls! One night, after our prayer meeting, a native came to me and inquired the way of Salvation.'

Switzerland, in preparation for the coming year, more and more of our people are doing any other.

Shadowgraphs

BY THE SHADOW

Shadow hears quite a lot about Trinity Classes of late. Adjutant Richards of the Post at Montreal secured a room for his proposed New Year's advance in this department.

Quite a lot of talk goes on over plans laid out on a certain table. Commissioner, Chief Secretary, Finance, Young People's, and Property Departmental Heads—with their heads together over some proposals for developments in the Young People's Work in Windsor (Ont.). Allow Shadow to drop a hint: 550 on those lines, Workers among the young!

Shadow was informed that the Sergeant-Major and Treasurer of Tippecanoe were overwhelmed with the quality, quantity, and cheapness of the prizes selected by them during the week.

And Liggar Street samples are of the highest quality, and the comrades are more than pleased—with the same.

Shadow hears that the Commissioner has been in consultation with Major Jennings concerning the selection of Librarians suitable to all Junior Corps, both small and great; and it is likely that your "Cry," Mr. Editor, will be enriched with prices for the same, ranging in numbers 25, 50, 75, 100, 125, up to 300 books.

About eight Toronto Young People's Workers gathered in the Life-Saving Scout Headquarters, the Young People's Secretary going carefully through the duties of such. Shadow heard remarks to the effect that it was most valuable. What about those who were not there?

Shadow hears that Adjutant Squarbrick informed the Commissioner that he had transferred five Young People to the Scotch Roll last week. Well done, Adjutant!

Mr. Lill, Shadow has an attack of cold chills throughout the whole of his transparent body. He hears that you have received instructions to leave Canada and take up a great position in Australia. Can this be true? What will Shadow do without your encouragement!

How cold it has been lately. Shadow saw the Commissioner with the other Young People on walking camp, that it was for the first time in his

THE WAR CRY

Has the Commissioner had worn anything of the kind. What does that mean, Mr. Editor? Old age creeping on?

There is no necessity, however, for any extra clothing in the Grand Trunk Railway coach as the party proceeds towards Montreal. They are going to another Young People's Day. This makes the fourth of the series. Expectations run high for a big thing.

My word! but the Shadow hears that the infection at Montreal was very penetrating, and went back over three years.

Wonderful Young People's Day, beyond anything that the party expects! R2 through the Registration Room: ten Corps Cadets and seven Candidates!

Shadow was informed that at several Corps the Sergeant-Scout-Major has been relieved of his duties and placed in charge of the Young People's Work. This is grand!

Shadow noticed the intense interest and enthusiasm of the Field Officers in the Young People's Day. These Officers evidently thoroughly believe in the Young People.

The Divisional Commander is meeting every Officer in his Division and sitting down with them, with his plans for the Winter Campaign all tabulated, to the Chief Secretary informed the Shadow.

Shadow hears that an excellent and perfect system of tabulating all enlistments—Soldiers, Bandsmen, ex-Soldiers or Adherents—is in vogue at the Divisional Headquarters.

Shadow saw the Field Officer and Treasurer coming out from an interview with the Commissioner, Chief Secretary, and Financial Secretary, and on enquiring found that they had had a satisfactory reply concerning their new building.

The Field Secretary looks fagged. The inspection costs a lot of work upon him, and figure calculation is rather worrying to mental tissue.

What is the anxious look on the face of the Divisional Commander each time he comes out from the inspection office? Why, he is desirous that his Field Officers' work should show up well.

Ah! he smiles. Well, that follows a congratulatory on certain aspects of his work.

Directory Class. What does that mean? Why, a most interesting Young People's Meeting on Sunday morning, based on: (1) for children under ten years, and (2) for those over ten.

The "Aids to the Directory" is a book which is one of the finest commentaries and assistants to all speakers. A certain clergyman declares that this book is one of the best assistants to his sermon-making. Why do all speakers not secure a copy?

Shadow was delighted to be informed of the above interesting item and feels determined to secure one of these books to help in his imperfect utterances.

THE SALVATION ARMY—AS AN AUXILIARY TO THE BRITISH ARMY

[Moncton Daily Transcript]

Everybody recognizes the good work which The Salvation Army is doing locally, but how many recognize the equally good work which The Salvation Army is doing, not only in the theatre of war, but in reference to the organization of co-ops for the Persian Gulf expedition the following item:

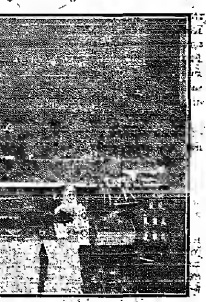

The military authorities have asked The Salvation Army in India to raise two porter corps for service in the Persian Gulf in loading and unloading ships. Each corps will be under the command of British Salvation Army Officers. Staff-Captain Barnett has been appointed Commandant of the first corps, and has received a commission as Second Lieutenant.

From the preceding it is evident that the field of useful activity by The Salvation Army is not restricted to a purely religious mission, but is marked by an extraordinary versatility of action.

On Friday, Jan. 26th, the Life-Saving Scouts and Guards of Orilla held a Social. A lecture deal was given by Kingler Bristol and Patrol Leader Myers, also a solo on the Jew's harp, a song by the Guards, "Do Your Bit," and two interesting riddles were items in the programme. The Sand Tray

Elsewhere will be found some interesting information concerning the Sand Tray and its uses. We heartily commend its careful perusal by Corps Commanders and Young People's Workers, for we feel sure that it will prove a great stimulus to the use of the Sand Tray. It is so simple in practice that any one can use it, and so wonderfully effective that we feel sure those workers who start to use it will continue to do so. It has been aptly said by the interviewer that through Eye-gate runs the highway to the mind. There is no doubt about that; it is also a short-cut to the understanding. Any one can read a picture, and all normal children can understand the objects before them. The Sand Tray affords splendid opportunities for any one with an inventive turn of mind to impart lasting instruction to the young. We hope to see it much more frequently used than at present.

FAREWELL OF

LEUT.-COL. & MRS. BOND

THE EDITOR LEAVES CANADA FOR AUSTRALIA

On Friday, Jan. 12th, Commissioner Richards received a cable from the Chief of the Staff, informing him that The General had appointed Lieut.-Colonel Bond to succeed Lieut.-Colonel Friedrich, of the Editorial Department in Australia, and that an Editor for the Canadian Publications would, in due course, be appointed from London.

Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Bond, with their customary readiness to fall in line with God's will and The General's plans, promptly accepted the appointment, and, according to present arrangements, Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Bond will publicly farewell from Toronto at the Commissioner's Rhodes Avenue meetings in the Greenwood Theatre, on Sunday, Feb. 4th, and will leave on Tuesday, Feb. 6th, for the coast via Chicago, sailing from Vancouver on Wednesday, Feb. 14th, by the S.S. Niagara.

At the time of writing the name of Lieut.-Colonel Bond's successor has not been received.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Captain Walcott, of Preston, who has recently received news that his brother has been killed in action.

Ensign Pagner has been transferred to this Territory from Canada West and is appointed to the Ottawa Rescue Home. Captain Aldridge goes from Ottawa to St. John, and Salvation Slides is taking a field appointment.

COMMISSIONER SOWTON

CONDUCTS AN EIGHT-DAY SALVATION CAMPAIGN AT WINNIPEG

The eight-day Salvation

Campaign in the City of Winnipeg was successfully launched by Commissioner Sowton on Sunday, Jan. 7th. All who attended the various meetings, particularly the Salvationists, came fully expecting to experience seasons of spiritual refreshing, and few went away disappointed. Each of the services, as the Commissioner desired to call them, were indeed "Awakening Meetings."

In view of the fact that several prominent men were conducting mass meetings at different theatres in the city, the attendance at the Citadel was very encouraging. Brigadier and Mrs. Taylor and the Divisional Staff, together with the Territorial Singers, supported the Commissioner enthusiastically. Some singing and some of the Winnipeg I. Corps turned out well, and endeavored to hold up the hands of the Territorial Commander as far as lay in their power.

There was no denying the fact, the people were disappointed when the Commissioner informed them that, on account of having contracted a severe cold, Mrs. Commissioner Sowton would not be able to be present, much as she desired to do so.

The morning service was indeed a means of Grace. God came directly near, and through the Commissioner spoke direct to the hearts of the people. Some of the innovation was the testimony of Mrs. Adjutant Larson, delivered in her native language (Swedish) and translated by the Commissioner.

The Salvation Singers' rendering of the favourite song, "I Men Thy Welcome Voice," was very acceptable, and the choros, "I am coming, Lord," was sung with such deep feeling by the congregation that the Commissioner requested them to sing it again, and again.

For nearly thirty minutes the Commissioner spoke on the possibility of being able to have perfect victory every day, and also that it was every one's privilege not only to inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, but to have a foretaste of it here on earth, by partaking of the fruits of the Spirit, which are accessible to all who will submit and render an absolute obedience to the will of God.

Brigadier Taylor had barely given the invitation, when no less than four rose to their feet and came forward to the Mercy Seat. A good start. Hallelujah!

Previous to the usual Free-and-Easy meeting the Commissioner addressed the Winnipeg I. Young People. He was supported by Staff Captain W. Peacock (the Young People's Secretary).

"Growing" young men who were present said: "The Commissioner gave a splendid talk to the youngsters. He earnestly urged them to intensify their devotion." This assertion by "one of them" was indeed correct.

The afternoon meeting went with a swing. The Brigadier's part in the singing of the choros of the particular piece. It went with a swing. The personal testimony of Adjutant Larson, who, for the past few years, has been labouring among the exercises. This very bright, interesting service was brought to a close after an address by the Commissioner, which was a strong appeal to the unsaved to make their peace with God.

"Would Jesus Have the Sinner Die?" sung to the tune of "Sovereignty," was the opening song of the concluding meeting of the day. The Citadel was crowded, and the congregation participated in the singing in a manner which convinced one that while they sang, the deep truths contained in the words were having effect upon their hearts.

The appeals of both Mrs. Staff Captain Peacock and Adjutant Peacock were of a character that could not but convince the unconverted of the power of the Blood to save and cleanse from sin. Both testified most emphatically to the saving and keeping power of God in their own lives.

The Commissioner's address tended to bring about an "awakening" in the hearts and souls of all being a powerful exhortation to those indifferent to spiritual things to "awake." The Commissioner divided the people present into three classes, and likened them to the three people whom Christ raised from the dead: the daughter of Jairus, the son of the widow of Nain, and Lazarus.

A spirit of deep conviction brooded over the congregation as the Brigadier arose to "draw in the net" and, after a long pull and a strong pull on the part of God's people, coupled with their prayers and faith, a number of men and women were found and found pardon. One of the men who came forward was attired in His Majesty's uniform.

The Commissioner continues with the campaign till Jan. 16th, when he proceeds to Regina, and Lieut.-Colonel Turner takes charge and brings the effort to a conclusion on Sunday, Jan. 18th.

MONDAY

A splendid crowd attended the first week-night meeting of the Salvation Campaign conducted by Commissioner Sowton at the Citadel. After the good start of the campaign had received on the Sunday, every one came up full of faith for a real good time, and truly the service was two hours of Salvation, joy, and gladness. The spirits of God's people were received and quickened and sinners were led to see and realize the error of their ways.

A large number of Officers were present, among them being Brigadier Taylor and Phillips. The latter had his "family" (the Cadets) with him, and their zeal and enthusiasm knew no bounds.

At the opening of the opening exercises, the Commissioner called upon the Cadets to testify. They needed no spand bidding. For several fifteen minutes these young people, one after another, told of what a change the power of God had brought about in their lives; of His love, safety and peace.

The Citadel Singers were out in full force, and supplied some excellent music. One piece they sang was very appropriate and the kind required for these awakening services, and the congregation, at the request of the Commissioner, took part in the singing of the choros of the particular piece. It went with a swing.

The personal testimony of Adjutant Larson, who, for the past few years, has been labouring among the

COMMISSIONER RICHARDS

CONDUCTS YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY AT MONTREAL— TWO HUNDRED PRESENT, AND ONE HUNDRED AND TWO SURRENDERS

THE scene was the Hall of the Montreal Metropole, filled almost to an uncomfortable degree with over two hundred of the best of the Young People from all the Corps in the City of Montreal—Life-Saving Scouts and Guards, Corps Cadets, Candidates, Young People's Workers—in fact, every branch of the work which lies so near the Commissioner's heart—was represented in that crowd.

With the promptness of the sun in its movements, the Commissioner, at 10.30 a.m., walked onto the platform amid a reception from four hundred clapping hands, and half as many transfixed eyes. Captain East, the first of which he has never yet received.

The Chief Secretary then announced the opening song, after which Brigadier Bredridge prayed for the success of the day. The Commissioner then reflected over what the Commissioner had imparted to them, and from their past experience assuring all that it was the most profitable way to spend life.

The Chief Secretary related a splendid story of an Australian girl, who indeed had all the evidences of being the successor of the Fruit of the Spirit. Converted in a small town in the far west, she felt the Spirit of God calling her for Overseas; became a Cadet, and there felt the Lord still calling for something greater from her. She secured permission to go to the worst district in Melbourne to work among the deep-dyed sinners, and still she felt there was something more that God desired of her. She offered herself for Java, journeyed thither, and for some time worked hard in a little town. Still, she felt she was not in her place, for she felt she had no hardships to endure or sacrifices to make, so finally went right into the hills. While working here, a dread scourge broke out, and with unselfish devotion she nursed the sick and dying and buried the dead, until at last she was stricken with the dread disease herself. When lying she thought of home and loved ones, and still felt that she had done her duty, so, having read to please her God, she went to meet Him in the realms above.

The Commissioner's love for the young is well known, and his desire to help them at all times much appreciated, but perhaps he has never loved by a Divisional Young People's Day which the Commissioner has conducted at Halifax, St. John, and Toronto.

When describing the wonderful peace of God which the soul could enjoy, the Commissioner told some stories of the early Christian martyrs; how a girl of youthful age, through her determination to be true to God, was taken and placed in a net and tossed on the horns of a fierce bull. This falling to alter her decision, she was placed in a red-hot chair to die, but still she retained the peace which God had given her. Then, smiling the subject to everyday life, he clearly defined how, under all circumstances, God's peace could be retained in the heart and life of every listener.

The morning and afternoon sessions of the day were most interesting and exceedingly helpful. Lieut.-Colonel Hargrave, Brigadier Bredridge and Mrs. Morris, in a few minutes, were making the Young People to carefully reflect over what the Commissioner had imparted to them, and from their past experience assuring all that it was the most profitable way to spend life.

emotion was evident, but a cool, calculated determination was very evident. Tears came to many eyes, but they were shed, not of the emotional kind, however, but of a real, sincere character, which told of earnest desires to live a life of service for God.

By eight o'clock over fifty Young People had knelt at the Mercy Seat, but still they came, for a splendid-looking young Bandmaster, now a Patrol Leader of the Guards, a wounded, returned military man—on, on, until at last all swell the choros "Victory for Me!" when the hundred and second soul obtained the victory.

It was very fitting that representative comrades should give their views on the day's meetings, and Brigadier McMillan, Adjutant Calkins, Captain Pace, Balfour, Atkinson, Young People's Sergeant-Major Colley, and the Life-Saving Scout and Guard Leaders of Montreal I. and II., respectively, each expressed their personal appreciation and that of the Corps of the city for the day's work. Without the past, each told of the many blessings received throughout the day, and of their firm conviction that it was but a foretaste of greater things for the Young People of Montreal.

The genial Divisional Commander—on his own and everybody else's behalf—then undertook to express appreciation and thanks to the Commissioner, and, in terms exceedingly warm, thanked the Commissioner for his having found time to come to Montreal for the wonderful time with God they had had, and gave in advance a very urgent and hearty welcome to come again next year for another just such a day.

The outburst of cheering and clapping which followed his remarks can only be termed as a "volcanic eruption" in its exuberance. With the singing of "The Army's Doxology," the Montreal Young People's Day, so far as the meetings were concerned, was a thing of the past, and the good ones who can venture to speak of it, so far as the future is concerned.

Throughout the day the Commissioner was very ably assisted by the Chief Secretary, Brigadier Morris, Bredridge, and McMillan; Mrs. Major Vinton, and a number of the Corps and other Officers of the Montreal Division. Music was rendered throughout the day by the Montreal Boys' Band, under the able leadership of Bandmaster Alex. McMillan.

The Commissioner's love for the young is well known, and his desire to help them at all times much appreciated, but perhaps he has never loved by a Divisional Young People's Day which the Commissioner has conducted at Halifax, St. John, and Toronto.

SOLDIERS' MEETING AT HAMILTON

The second of the Commissioner's "United Soldiers' Meetings" was held in the Hamilton H. Corps on Thursday night last, when the Hall was practically filled with Soldiers from Hamilton I., II. and III., and Dundas Corps, and it was a most enthusiastic welcome the Commissioner once more received to the "Ambition City."

The Chief Secretary was in charge of the opening exercises, and, in his usual cheery, energetic manner, ably aided the Commissioner in giving a few words of exhortation and reminding the gathered comrades of the wonderful privilege that was theirs, in having the Commissioner with them.

Brigadier Morris, in the manner in which the comrades took up the choros, "I'll Follow Thee," left no doubt in the minds of the victors that it was a blessed time was to follow.

The Commissioner, in his usual brief, business-like manner, stepped forward, assuring the comrades of

For example, a comparatively slight blow on the left temple may suffice to indent the skull case and cause it to press in on a particular part of the brain, known as the temporal lobe, which is the seat of the conditions of blood supply to the particular convolution of the brain called the speech centre, may be so disturbed that the brain cells cannot work efficiently, and the individual may entirely forget the use of words, suffering from what is technically spoken of as aphasia.

The injury may not be sufficient to

In this case there is no fracture of the bones, since the bones of the infant, as every one knows, are relatively flexible, and the skull case-in infancy has not become a solid structure. You can test the latter by feeling the pulse of your child with a finger placed at one of the openings of the skull, above the forehead, or at the occiput, which is technically known as the

The symptoms of hemorrhage beneath the membranes of the child's brain may be as pronounced. Moreover, the fact that the infant is not expected to show much evidence of mentality during the first weeks of its life makes it difficult in any event to discriminate between normal conditions of mentality and conditions modified by brain pressure during the early weeks of the infant's

With an earnestness which was almost pathetic in its intensity, one of the officers, Mr. Schuler, addressed the Officer against the danger of becoming formal, and thereby getting away from that class of work which God has brought The Army into existence for; and then invited all to join in consecrating their lives to God's service, that a mighty revival might break out amongst God's own people and the sinner also.

It was a most inspiring sight to see the crowd of earnest, determined people stand to their feet, and in a long song, which constituted a prayer, express their determination to God to be more valiant in the fight for the extension of His Kingdom.—K. J. H.

MAJOR DESBRISAY

Conducts Holiness Meeting—Three
at the Cross—Training College Songsters Sing.

One good meeting always leads us to expect another, and when the presence of God had been so evident at the opening Friday night holiness meeting at the Parliament Street Corps, we looked forward with even greater hopes for the second—and we were not disappointed.

The service was conducted by Major DesBrisay, assisted by the Training College Staff and Cadets. During the meeting two selections were given by the Chester Songsters, which were much enjoyed. The Training College Songsters made their initial appearance. They sang with heart from their hearts and, we believe that their singing, from time to time, will be the means of bringing blessing to many hearts.

Adjutant Paterson and Ensign Polcott spoke regarding the blessing of Holiness, and gave definite testimonies as to its fulfillment in their own lives.

The Major's talk on Moses' experience at the burning bush supplied thought for all, and her message clearly explained the necessity and possibility of entire sanctification.

There are scores of meetings; we tend that are gradually forgotten, and they simply slip into the past as part of the great whole, but to at least three people the Holiness meeting at Parliament Street on Jan. 12th will stand out as a Bethel in their experience; for they definitely took fresh stand for God, and made a full surrender to His will, and they are able to give testimony to the experience found.

One of the ways was a means of bringing to all of us the message of the love that God desires, new blessings and earnestly seeking them went away disappointed.

HUMANITY PAYS

UNDER the above heading, Sir Frederick Williams, Taylor (General) Manager of the Bank of Montreal, writes in the Montreal Hospitals Commission "Bulletin," as follows:

"The interests of our fighting men and the interests of our national life are the same. The interests of the one are short as the other is long. The one is for the long run—and often in the short run, too—with a nation as with an individual. It is perfectly clear that we need thoroughly organized and equipped coast scientific corps, and that we must be working in close touch with the men already coming back disabled. Fortunately we have the Military Hospitals Commission carrying out this task, and it has already received the approval of the Government. The Canadian people should know more about this magnificent work that is being done in their name and for their interests; but they are not. The Government is not on the way it is backed up by a well-formed public opinion."

THE COUNTRY'S BURDEN

SIR FREDERICK goes on to point out that by neglecting to restore every man to the highest efficiency he is able to attain, we should be adding to the country's burden in two ways, both of them very serious. One way is by increasing the pensions for disability. "Every removable disability that is not removed," he says, "therefore lays an increased and unnecessary burden on the whole community, including all the soldiers themselves besides being a particularly grievous injury to the soldier who is allowed to suffer from it. A still heavier burden would be laid on the country by the loss of these men in industry."

"I hope that the finding or making employment for soldiers will be carried out with the same thoroughness of organization that has been adopted to fit them for employment. This is the business of every employer, and indeed of every citizen who can either stimulate or in any way assist the provincial and other organizations formed for this purpose."

A GOOD PLAN

TO enable British doctors to enter the army, arrangements are being made to fill their places in home hospitals by Americans (says the London "Daily Telegraph"). There are hundreds of doctors of military age in home hospitals who wish to join the army, but hitherto they have been denied that honour owing to lack of substitutes.

The Arrival of the Mails—Parcels From Home

The Christmas mail for the front has been larger than ever in year, and the Post Office has been dispatching parcels to the soldiers at the rate of a quarter of a million a day. The picture shows a few of them arriving at their destination at the front.

A writer in "Our Dumb Animals" tells how she does both shelters and feeds the birds during the winter. She says, "I scatter a few pine nuts, cut off the end (like taking the top off an egg), put a string through it, knot it, and then hang the cocoons from a tree limb. The birds find them, once will flock to eat the cocoons, and when they have eaten enough, they fly to make sitting room, nearby to the string." The writer says, "A few cents food cost are provided for many birds for month. In the most severe weather this food is also available, and one may remain at home for some several days. I know the birds are provided for, pass on this idea, that others have the welfare of the little birds at heart may use this or some other means to protect them."

ALASKAN DOGS USEFUL

WITH the return of heavy snow in the Vosges, Alaskan teams today are vying with automobile drivers for the American ambulance and the membership of the Norwegian Red Cross Ship Corps the honour of bringing in the greatest number of wounded.

The Alaskan sled dogs constitute the latest "war material" being supplied from America to France. Though the allies, through their pre-emptive mastery of the seas, are able to gather war supplies in any all parts of the world, the Alaskan sled dogs are conceded the honour of coming from the most distant point and even the greatest distances which the allies have yet been obliged to draw.

A LONG-NEEDED MOVIE

THE war has brought home to the British people the folly of allowing large tracts of land to be left simply as game preserves for the rich, and the Government has issued an order making all such land available for agricultural purposes, and the Board of Agriculture is authorized to take the necessary steps to bring this land under the plow and compel it to help to feed Britain's millions.

NEW AUTO SIGNAL

WHEN the automobile driver about to stop or turn a corner in the daytime, his extended arm warns the cars behind him of his intention. When he wants to stop at night, his warning arm is likely to be lost in darkness.

A new glove has been put on the market which has a tiny electric bulb fastened to the wrist. At night, he extends the driver's arm by closing his fingers in a certain way the driver can close the circuit and light the bulb on the back of the glove. Thus his extended arm carries a clearly visible point of light for night driving.

BRITAIN IN THE SUDAN

IN spite of frequent reports that the native population of Egypt and the Sudan are on the point of rising against their British rulers, they have proved themselves loyal than ever (says Herbert A. Gibbons in the "Century").

Mr. Gibbons describes, in confirmation of this opinion, a visit he paid to Omdurman on the occasion of the prophet's birthday. His host was Sir Reginald Wing Kitchener's successor of the Soudan. "When Sir Reginald explained to me who I was and what I came for," writes Mr. Gibbons, "he nodded their heads with satisfaction and laughed. Tell him to write me soon," they declared. "We are glad that he came to our feast, for we give London a good report of him."

Under the operation of drainage law, Prince Edward is expected to increase its values by four million dollars.

CHAPTER VII

PAOLO MICALEFF earned a precarious livelihood by driving a carozza for hire. A light, four-wheeled, one-seater carriage, in which six people could be crammed, including the driver. A fixed canvas canopy protects passengers from the fierce rays of the sun, while impenetrable waterproof curtains serve to keep them dry in rainy weather. As a rule, the carozza men do not allow the example of Jesus, who was noted for driving filthy, but they do not refuse to be pulled by a carozza man once the usual manner.

"No, Billy, I'm in a hurry," replied the driver as he passed on. He needed to be, however, and extra money was forthcoming, the carozza was full of scrupulous in lashing his way across into a gallop. Paolo, then, was one of this fraction, and from early morning till late night he scoured the roads round the Maltese harbours for fares. He was with the British soldier, who had been at the back of the carozza, and the reader will have guessed by this time that he was interested in the driver. He had been making enquiries at the barracks about any soldiers who might be interested in the carozza. This made a good fare, and he dismissed him. very little prospect of getting any business in the village. Paolo thought he might as well drive back to his beat stand, which was in the town. As it would not be very much out of his way, he resolved to stop at Biancardi's to eat his frugal evening repast and indulge in a glass of beer.

He arrived there just as the family was concluding supper and being, of course, a privileged friend, was soon spied, however, by little Pietro Biancardi (the youngest boy), who called to him in a shrill voice. Then he stopped smilingly into the room and in the most suave and oily manner, bade every one a good evening. Camilla, who knew that the poor fellow was deeply in love with her, after such a short acquaintance.

"This is the brave soldier who came to my help on the night of the

"Vincenzo, do you value the honour of your sister?" asked Paolo, abruptly.

The other sprang savagely to his feet. "What do you mean?" he asked. "Does any one threaten her? If so, my knife is ready!"

"She doesn't get excited now! I only want to put you on your guard. Tell me now, what do you think of that soldier who calls George coming here and saying such things to her, after such a short acquaintance?"

"I don't like it," said Vincenzo, "and if he utters any more such silly nonsense, I'll tell him so. If he ever insults Camilla and she appeals to me—ah!" and he drew his hand across his throat significantly.

"The suspicious of every soldier who comes fooling around with our Maltese girls," said Paolo. "These English seem to have an idea that all the women on this island are the same as those loose characters from Sicily, who are to be found in a certain quarter of Valletta. So, watch out for that fellow George, Vincenzo; and don't let him fascinate poor little Camilla with his fine talk."

By this time Vincenzo was calming down a bit, and began to perceive that Paolo was speaking out of a jealous heart.

"I think Camilla is likely to do the fascinating," he said lightly. "Now, look here, Paolo, don't jump to conclusions too hastily. After all, you can't blame a man for wanting to say pretty things to a pretty girl, can you? It's his nature!"

"But this man means mischief! I tell you I saw it in his eyes!" said Paolo.

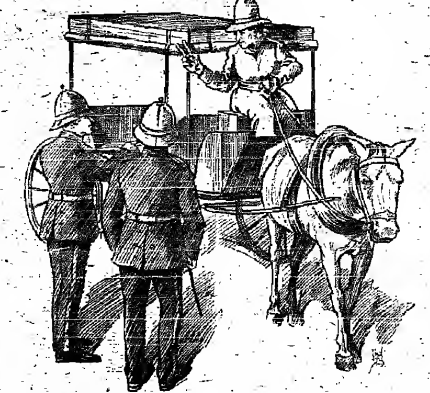

Vincenzo burst out laughing. "Paolo, you're a jealous fool," he said. "Why, the man is as nice a soldier as ever I've met, and after all, you must admit that he showed himself a good-intentioned man when he intervened to save my sister from insult at the hands of one of his own countrymen. If he was as bad as you think he is, he would not have acted thus. Oh, hot drive her brother carozza to Tigne Point, Paolo, and let the breeze (cool wind) blow some of the suspicious out of your mind!"

But Paolo took Vincenzo's levity with very bad grace, and, turning moodily away, he commented to eat his supper.

"You will see before long that no good will come out of getting too friendly with these English soldiers," he growled. "I don't like them, and the horse would be too tired to make another journey right at once."

Old Giuseppe and the two soldiers now went into the shop, the younger children ran off to play, while Camilla and her mother busied themselves with domestic duties.

Paolo was thus left alone with Vincenzo, and they commenced talking together in their own language. (To be continued.)

"Paolo was fortunate in picking up two soldiers" about to walk right into the inner room without any formalities, when the sight of two strange soldiers sitting at the table made him pause on the threshold. Just at that moment Camilla was speaking, but he caught only the latter part of what she said. "You'll like us much better the more you know us."

George's reply, "I am certain I shall like you, at any rate," made him grin like a fool. Who was this insolent English soldier? and how was it that he was on such familiar terms with the family? How dare he speak to Camilla like that? Why didn't Vincenzo give him a sharp lesson, similar to the one he had given that other soldier in Valletta on the night of the carnival? These thoughts and many others passed through Paolo's mind as he stood listening on the threshold, partly hidden from the view of those in the room by a thick curtain which the business going in full swing. I was getting all the work that I could do, and being the only practical shoemaker in this town I soon built up a good business. But the old enemy was after me again. Booze was all I wanted. It didn't matter how much I suffered, I could not leave it alone. I had been drinking pretty hard right up to about four weeks before. Previous to that I had been on a jag for about two weeks.

It was on a Sunday morning when I began to realize that if I didn't soon alter my habits I was going to finish up in a drunkard's grave. I still had the craving for more booze, but I could not get any. As I walked up Main Street that morning I felt ashamed of myself. I looked a perfect wreck. I couldn't see any one. I was clean down and out; had no money and had not got any fixed in the house.

I went back to my store about noon, and the sight that I saw began to touch my heart. There were her brother, weary, haggard, and cast down all around. I began to think of home, and I said, "I wonder what my mother would say if she could see this sight?" For my mother was right against drink. I began to realize that it was time that I asked my Saviour to save me from destruction, so I knelt down beside my bench and asked Him to save me, and I praise our Father for the blessings that He has given me.

I straightened things up, and then went up Main Street, where I fell in with Brother Lusk. He was an old friend of mine, and I said to him, "I think I'm a little down, and I need a different life." "Well, Ted," he said, "come to our meeting tonight. I want to talk to you, and I shall never regret going. It was the first time that I was ever in The Salvation Army Hall, and the sermon that the Captain delivered touched my heart. When the prayer meeting came on I knelt down and asked our Heavenly Father to forgive me for the past sins that I had committed, and I praise Him to-day with all my might for washing my sins away.

I am now leading a Christian life, and I hope that some one will be able to seek the blessings that I have received. From a converted sinner—Brother Johnson.

the Indians of British Columbia and Alaska, was most interesting and convincing. The Commissioner took for the subject of his address St. Paul's declaration on the men of Athens, making particular reference to the inscription on one of the altars, "To the Unknown God." The long experience of the Commissioner in his travels, and his knowledge of the world, illustrated and brought home to his hearers with power the truths he uttered.

TUESDAY

On Tuesday, Jan. 9th, there was a record crowd, with quite a percentage of people who were not accustomed to attend Army meetings. The Young People's Band was present; Bandmaster Irwin and the boys being glad of the privilege of supporting the Territorial Commander. They did well.

Brigadier Taylor was present, together with a number of other Officers of the Staff and Field. All were delighted that Mrs. Commissioner Sowton had sufficiently recovered to permit her being present, and on rising to speak, she received a warm welcome. A number of Officers were called upon for a few words of testimony, among them being Mrs. Adjutant

One could not help but note how the congregation followed every word; how each illustration was appreciated, and what deep conviction settled upon the meeting towards the close of the Commissioner's stirring appeal. He spoke from the second chapter of Jeremiah, and very forcibly reminded his hearers how mankind had forsaken God.

Brigadier Bettridge recently met the Young People's Workers of Toronto at the Scout Headquarters for the purpose of instructing them as to their duties. Eighty-two were present. It is planned to hold monthly meetings of all Divisional Committees for Young People's Workers. Brigadier Miller will accompany the Commissioner to Bermuda.

Mrs. Brigadier Atwell has been appointed Primary Instructor for the City of Toronto; and Mrs. Adjutant Calvert has accepted similar responsibility in the Romanas. We are pleased to hear from Major Arnold, of New York, that the operation on Mrs. Arnold has proved entirely successful, and that she is now well on the road to recovery. The warmest thanks are extended to all comrades who wrote anxiety messages during the days of surgery. The consciousness that many were praying for her greatly helped to sustain Mrs. Arnold at the most critical time.

Major Moore will now be leaving New York for Bermuda on the "Derwent," sailing Jan. 31st.

Heartily congratulations to Staff Captain Cornish on his promotion to Major. A short time ago the new Staff Captain will appear in our next issue.

Adjutant Vining was recently instrumental in securing a passage to England for a poor old lady, whose son is at the front. She has now reached her relatives and writes back to express her gratitude to The Army's help.

Mrs. Commissioner Sowton's message was listened to with rapt attention. She took for her text, "My sheep, hear My voice." Mrs. Adjutant Phipps, and Ensign Carter testified to their personal experience of the saving Grace of God. "Christ's Conversation with the Woman of Samaria" was the subject

Nothing but the Blood of Jesus!
What can make me pure within?
Nothing but the Blood of Jesus!

Oh, precious is the flow
That makes me white as snow;
No other fount I know,
Nothing but the Blood of Jesus!

What can sweep all doubts away?
Nothing but the Blood of Jesus!
How we live by faith each day,
Nothing but the Blood of Jesus!

What can make me conquer here?
Nothing but the Blood of Jesus!
Counting not my own life dear,

Tune—Tell me the old, old story.
Come, with me visit Calvary,
Where our Redeemer died;

He died from sin to sever
Our hearts and lives forever;

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

(Concluded on Page 12)

He drew numerous examples from the condition of the "penitents." Six of the converts of the night before were present and testified to the fact that God had kept them well saved
—praise God!

The Colonel's address was a drawing of compassion over the following: Vice, Indelible Lust, and God's wonderful love. The power and efficacy of God's power was to the heart with wonderful force, and six souls were found seeking salvation.

On Tuesday night, Jan. 9th, at five o'clock, another lantern lecture was given for the children, and quite a number were present, despite the blizzard which was raging fierily.

The subject was "Mystery." The Life of the Late General Booth, and it was brimful of interest. High age, salvation, and some who were saved
the night before testified to that effect.

At 8 p.m., the Colonel outlined the objects of the Movement called
"The Life-Saving Guards." Leaders, etc., have been secured, and a troupe of Guards will soon be commenced in Regina. Hence the Colonel's explanations in this connection.

Then the Colonel spoke on the beauty of Holiness, giving his talk on the words of Paul, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." His address was the cause of earnest soul-searching, especially when the dauntlessness of Paul was shown in the most trying trials of his life.

Four comrades offered themselves for service, one of them being a convert of the Sunday night meeting. One of the speakers was
